3. Last Week's Thought Question - Personal Leadership Vision Statement

During our M3 meeting on March 19, 2018, we left with this thought topic: Develop your personal leadership vision for yourself as it relates to your professional career. You asked for some examples:

Vision Statement: (Desired End-State, What You Want to Become) A one-sentence statement describing the clear and inspirational long-term desired change resulting from your work. Here are some examples:

- My personal leadership vision statement: Be a spark of energy that cultivates peace and transforms my family, community, and world.

- My professional leadership vision statement: Be the education technology leader that transforms education.
- My CFISD leadership vision: Be the district that transforms education.

The best visions are inspirational, clear, memorable, and concise. The average length is 14 words. Design your vision statement to clearly communicate what you are working to achieve or become in a way that you can remember it and communicate it to others

Develop your personal leadership vision for yourself as it relates to your professional career. The following are the team's results:

- Be the Service Technician Leader who provides solid award winning Customer Service
- Be the leader that facilitates software excellence in K-12 education.
- Be a leader that employees choose to follow while providing top level acquisition support in education.
- Learn from the best there was, to be the best there is, and teach the best there ever will be
- Become one that makes difference in your life, your family, and others. - "Anything is Possible"
- Be the educational technology leader that inspires change.
- Be an example of dedication and diligence, to serve as an inspiration to my family and others around me.
- Be the education technology leader that transforms education.
