DII CrowdStrike Meeting

Mark Costenbader

Mark Costenbader met with DII informed us that CrowdStrike is a four year startup funded in part by Google Capital. It is positioning itself as a next-generation solution for security. The company's main product, Falcon, relies on cloud computing to run more robust threat-detection analytics enhanced by customer crowdsourcing and make it easier to roll out its systems across a customer's network. It focuses on both identifying weak points and picking up on signs that an intrusion is happening. It is the newest way to protect edge devices against virus and ransomware.
